Summary of Qualification

As political scientist, I have been researching issues of international migration, migration and European integration since 1997 with a comparative approach and by drawing on mixed methods. My current research deals with transnational migration from a theoretical and empirical perspective. The geographical focus of my work spans from Western to Central and South-Eastern Europe, and cover also the Post-Soviet migration space with emphasis on the dynamics and multimodal character of migration flows in a changing policy context. Contribution to migration research include, among the other, issues of irregular migration (Ruspini, 2009; 2002; 2000), human trafficking (Di Nicola et al., 2009), migration control (Ruspini, 2008), multiculturalism (Eade and Ruspini, 2014a) immigrant integration (Ruspini, 2005) as well as explorations of the European migration space (Górny and Ruspini, 2004; Ruspini, 2008; 2010; Ruspini and Eade, 2014b), the convergence processes of the EU migration policy and transnationalism in East-West perspective (Richter et al. 2017; Ruspini, 2011). I have been working in many collaborative projects at national and European level and I am active in research networks regarding international migration like IMISCOE as well as being from time to time advisor for national and international organisations (e.g. the Swiss National Science Foundation, the Council of Europe, and the European Commission).

I was visiting professor at the Scuola Superiore Sant'Anna, Institute of Law, Politics and Development (DIRPOLIS) in Pisa from October 2013 until May 2014 and Associate Fellow at the Centre for Research in Ethnic Relations (CRER) of the University of Warwick for ten years until the CRER closed in September 2011. In 2001, I received a Marie Curie Individual Fellowship for the project "Living on the Edge: Irregular Migrants in Europe" and I was the principal investigator at the Centre for Research in Ethnic Relations of the University of Warwick (UK) for the research project "In Search for a New Europe: Contrasting Migratory Experiences" (2001-2005) in collaboration with the Centre of Migration Research of Warsaw University.

Finally, I was visiting scholar at the Mershon Center for Education, Ohio State University (1998) and worked for the United Nations Industrial Development Organisation (1995-1996) in Milan as assistant to the Indian and Chinese delegates in screening development proposals and following up negotiations between parties. I combine research activities with routine lectures at post-graduate level in many universities and international institutions.
