Key concepts for discussion

There is a strong interest for understanding the behavior of decision making organizations especially with the shifts from a traditional governance model to a corporate model

World Tourism Organization, 2007

The ability to act with skill and creativity in organizations begins with the development of multiple perspectives on and inside organizations.

Van Mannen, MIT 2003

For most organizations, the dynamic process of developing multiple perspectives through which they can advance a shared vision is rather complex however by searching for patterns in their behavior, one can describe and even predict the process of organizational adaptation

Miles et al, 1978

- ✓ "There are many differences between the public and private sector members of an alliance" (Rainey 1983; Ring & Perry 1985)
- ✓ "Strategies and actions should take into account the wishes of all stakeholders" (Palmer & Bejou, 1995; Buhalis & Fletcher, 1995; Jamal & Getz, 1996; Yuksel et al, 1999; Buhalis, 1999a)
- ✓ "More descriptive research and clinical inquiry is in demand to find out what is actually going on in organizations before we rush in to tell managers what to do about their problems" (Schein, 1988)

Assessing the dynamic evolution of the governance process by measuring the members' perspectives and their learning potential for developing multiple perspectives in the decision making process.

- Reactions to a marketing initiative of creating a new product – a park
 - I1 Yes, but we have to ask ourselves, what would this park mean to the people in the village? How would it fit with what we already have?
 - I2 Yes, I have the rights of passage on that land and I can get rapid support from the permits office
 - I3 More products in the destination will increase the overall value proposition and bring us more clients

OBS: the actors were educated about the 3 lenses at the beginning of the process and constantly reminded about them
