● ABOUT ME

I am an economist and environmental engineer. I work in the fields of regional sciences and statistics. I graduated with honours from the Politecnico di Milano (Italy) with a dissertation in regional sciences, in which I applied a foresight method to a spatial planning case study. I worked at the METID Centre (Metodi E Tecnologie Innovative per la Didattica) at the Politecnico di Milano and at the Institute of Earth Sciences of the University of Applied Sciences of Southern Switzerland SUPSI.

In my PhD dissertation at the Faculty of Economics, University of Lugano (USI), I analysed labour market flexibility, security and complexity in the Swiss context.

I am currently a research fellow and head of the Observatory for Economic Dynamics (O-De), Institute for Economic Research (IRE), University of Lugano (USI).
